Artist Statement

I wanted this website to focus on how unprepared some people can be when adopting pets. It wanted it to highlight how society often makes owning a pet seem easy or glamorous, ignoring the challenges. Through satire, the page aims to show the reality of adopting and caring for animals, from the unexpected problems to the hard work involved. The goal is to entertain while raising awareness about the true commitment of having a pet. This page encourages people to think more carefully about adoption and recognize that pets are not just cute accessories but require real care and attention.
